

Ten Reasons Why the Instant Studio is a Better Choice

Photo taken using a pocket size digital camera with flash.

Photo taken with the same camera with flash turned off.

1. Stopping a person in the hallway for a photo while they are heading for the restroom can create an unnatural looking pose.
2. The person's facial expression is further exaggerated when the original purpose for being in the hallway is once again delayed because of battery failure.
3. The picture from a pocket size digital camera equipped with a wide angle zoom lens reminds the person of his long forgotten New Year's resolution.
4. The built-in flash adds a dramatic "red-eye" effect greatly desired in horror films.
5. The ten minutes spent convincing the person that an acceptable portrait was taken cuts into your first break.
6. The fifteen minutes spent by the person convincing you why a new photo should be taken without the flash happens during your lunch period.
7. The additional time spent figuring out how to turn off the flash and reshoot the person using natural light is on company time.
8. However, the conversation spent convincing the person he really doesn't look like a green alien with racoon eyes just happens to fall during your second break.
9. Photoshop really can't fix everything!
10. You really aren't saving the company money by taking your own photos!

Photograph of the Instant Studio.

For $75 per person,
the Instant Studio
really is the better choice.

call: 913-334-6464
visit: www.mcarverphoto.com/thebox

Photo taken by the Instant Studio.